Leaky Boat, Hungry Wolf, Scanty Diet Are Worth $230,500, Says Charles

San Francisco.—An unseaworthy dory, a hungry wolf, a deserted Alaskan island and a scanty diet of roots and berries figure in a series of bizarre experiences related by Charles Sellow, in a suit for $230,500 damages, filed in federal court here against the Alaska Coalfield company and the Union Fish company. Sellow, belonged to the crew of the fishing vessel Mowena, which anchored off Lost Harbor, in April, 1922.

He was sent out in a rotten dory, Sellow said, and what happened afterward is related by him as follows:

"A wave struck the dory and knocked me overboard. The dory was leaking. Another wave threw me down and knocked me unconscious. The following day I revived and found myself on an island, with a scanty diet of roots and berries standing over my head ready to devour me. My screams frightened the wolf away. I was marooned on the island for three months, living on roots and berries."

Sellow says the experience ruined his health.

BLOOD TESTS TO DETERMINE CAUSE OF STRANGE DEATH

(By Associated Press.)

Madison.—Making of blood tests to determine the cause of the death of Mrs. Esther C. Thompson, 36, widow, yesterday, and to learn the nature of the strange affliction which has crept over her 40-year-old son, Thomas, is being delayed by the absence from the city of Dr. C. W. Muehlberger, state toxicologist.

Madison physicians at the Madison General hospital are making a fight to save the life of the man who is still in a state of coma.

Fear that the man may be a victim of poisoning has been expressed by physicians. It is possible that the woman's death was natural and that the man's condition is only a coincidence, it was stated. A search for relatives is being made.

It is said that the woman has a daughter in Milwaukee, but her name has not been learned.

Wisconsin Rapids is 150 miles, and on this basis it took 3,300 years to cover the distance.

FIVE MAIL PLANES IN AIR ON SECOND DAY OF BIG TEST

ONLY ONE FLYER DELAYED BY WEATHER IN FAR WEST.

MAKE GOOD TIME

New York to San Francisco Mail on Last Lap Over Mountains.

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago.—Five mail planes were in the air today, the second day of the big test of transcontinental airmail mail, with a successful flight record between Chicago and Cheyenne, and indications that the mail which left Cheyenne at 8:35 p. m. yesterday night would reach New York before noon.

Due to storms and fogs in Wyoming, the mail which left San Francisco at 6:50 a. m. Pacific time yesterday, was delayed all night in reaching Cheyenne, and shortly before noon, central standard time, today, was enroute to Omaha on the eastern flight. Except for the interference of the elements which held Pilot H. A. Collier at Laramie, Wyo., over night, in spite of three days, the San Francisco mail in all probability would have reached New York within 25 hours scheduled.

Besides Pilot P. M. Allison, who left Cheyenne at 8:35 a. m. yesterday, a mail plane with a mailman's mail cargo which he had taken into Cheyenne at 5:55 a. m., two other transcontinental flights—those scheduled for the second day, had left their respective terminals at New York and San Francisco. Pilot Shirley J. Short left Curlew field, Homestead, N. Dak., at 8:30 a. m. today, with Pilot C. Eugene Johnson, although ill of bronchial trouble, had started from the east yesterday. At 5:25 a. m. Pilot H. Cleveland had left Cheyenne at 8:20 a. m. mountain time, for the final dash across Wyoming, Nevada and California, with the mailman Johnson took out of New York yesterday.

Washington.—The U. S. Gopher, a training ship attached to the ninth naval reserve district, was sunk Tuesday in the Gulf of St. Lawrence during a gale, according to a message received by the navy department, which said there was no loss of life.

The ship went down in 35 fathoms of water, says the message, which was sent from Quebec and was signed "signal service."

The Gopher was listed in the official "ships data" of the navy department as an obsolete gunboat. She displaced 840 deadweight tons, was of wooden construction throughout and was built at New York in 1871. Her last station was Colorado, O., as a reserve training ship with the ninth district.

The Gopher's armament consisted of three 3-pounders, her guns being on half the size of those now used in the navy for firing salutes.

Farm Bureau Official Information

MILTON - EDGERTON C. T. A.

Production of cows in the Milton-Edgerton cow testing association dropped off during July, lower than in other months. There are few fresh cows at this time of the year, but the herd is well during the hot weather and fly season to hold high production.

The purebred Jersey, Sopha's Pedrosa, owned by F. A. North, Edgerton, was high cow in the association last month. She milked 44 pounds on two milkings a day with a test of 4.5 percent. The North herd production was good for the reason the herd was being fed in the barn during the day and during the night.

James Palmer, Milton, had the high herd average with 11 registered Holsteins. "Good feeding accounted for the high marks made," reports Dale Edgerton, tester. "The records now being made show the necessity of feeding well during the summer months if cows are to be kept from stumping on production."

The report follows:

Ten High Herds.		Breed.	No. of Cows	Test	Prod.

APPROVE FINDINGS IN MEXICO PARLEY

Diplomatic Relations Expected to be Resumed Soon by Nations.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, D.C., Aug. 21.—Coolidge and Secretary Hughes have approved the findings of the American-Mexican commission which have evolved a basis for the resumption of diplomatic relations at once between the United States and Mexico.

Just as soon as diplomatic relations have been renewed, there will be signed by the governments at Washington and Mexico City two "conventions," one on claims as well as claims growing out of the revolution.

Those conventions will be ratified by the senate of each country. No difficulty is anticipated in the ratification of the conventions.

Approval as they simply set up a machinery for the settlement of claims which are now satisfactory to both governments.

All the troublesome old and agrarian questions will be handled by properly constituted tribunals.

There is no reason to expect that the United States on its part has become convinced of the sincerity and good faith of the Mexican authorities.

Induced, an era of friendship and good will between the United States and Mexico now may be predicted.

There was for a time during the revolution in Mexico a considerable difficulty in arriving at a formula that would be satisfactory to both countries. For one thing it was agreed that the United States would not be allowed to interfere in the internal affairs of Mexico.

Although the American government has conducted its affairs without any such interference, the impression prevails that when the acts are made public they will see the merit of the new plan of procedure.

Most important of all the results achieved, however, is the intimacy established between the governments at Mexico City and Washington.

One of the most important results of the agreement is the fact that the United States is now in a position to deal with disputes on an equitable basis and in line with the principles of justice.

Expect Others to Follow
When the United States formally resumes diplomatic relations, all the other governments in the world are expected to follow suit.

The action of the American government is always a precedent for European and Latin American countries to follow.

In fact, the action of the United States is being adopted by other governments to handle their claims against Mexico.

There is nothing in the proposed convention which is likely to be adopted by other governments to handle their claims against Mexico.

The next step undoubtedly will be the resumption of Mexican exports to the United States.

Received indication that Mexico is in a potentially sound condition; that fully 50 per cent more income is being collected today by the Obregon administration than was collected by the Porfirio Diaz administration.

Mexico is taking her resources in a way that she never has before and is in a position to win a large and profitable trade with the United States.

Certainly the moral support of the United States government will not be withheld to any enterprise of the kind if the opinion of the United States government is sought by either country. It is somewhat only to forecast just what the financial steps will be but the essential fact at the moment is that Mexico is in a position to win a large and profitable trade with the United States.

President Harding would have been happy at the results obtained. He was eager to see Mexico and the United States resume diplomatic relations so that the entire hemisphere might again be reunited.

It appears probable that R. C. Gray, who was selected by Mr. Harding to be ambassador to Mexico, will be sent to Mexico City shortly.

U. W. Prepares for Opening, Sept. 26

Officials of the University of Wisconsin are making arrangements for opening of school Sept. 26 and one of the largest pieces of work is listing the rooms for rent in order to aid students, and establishing an employment bureau for those who wish to work.

The year's list of rooms is now ready for distribution. It has 230 double rooms and some 56 single rooms for men. Room rents are the same as last year. There are no rooms listed in the office of the dean of men which rent for more than $1.50 per person per week.

On a double room, the $1.50 applies to a single room. A large number of double rooms range from $2.50 to $3.50 a week apiece, and a number of doubles are listed at $4 a week.

University Y. M. C. A. is listing all men who wish to work this coming year, and naming the preferences for kind of work and qualifications.

During the past year the employment bureau of the University Y. M. C. A. has given out more than 1,000 jobs to men who were listed.

Many of these were school students, and many of these are remaining over until the fall term starts, working at jobs thus obtained.

Tells of Great Progress Made in Aiding Convicts

Reminiscences of the lives of William McKinley, Mark Hanna, Matthew Quay, and other men in public life as seen by a newspaper man, were given by Stephen Bolles, editor of the Gazette, speaking at the Rotary club luncheon at the Grand hotel Tuesday.

Bolles described the assassination of McKinley at the Buffalo exposition and his subsequent death.

Twenty-two thousand persons released from prison cells have become self-respecting citizens through the work of the Central Howard association in the past 23 years, G. M. Burdette, district, told agent, told the Rotary club luncheon.

It had been done at a cost of $3 per capita and that 85 percent of the persons given attention by the association have made good.

People who have been released from prison are given clothing, a job and sufficient money so that they can live, and are required to deposit their money in a bank.

Regular reports to association representatives. An appeal for funds was made.

An invitation to participate in the annual Rotary Club of Madison will be held this year at the Beloit Country club Sept. 11, was accepted by the Janesville club. Other participants will be from the Beloit and Madison Rotary clubs.

The birthdays of Fred Clemons and George Kling were observed. Dean James E. Ryan was chairman.

FRANCE REFUSES RUHR WITHDRAWAL UNLESS PAID UP

Premier Poincare stressed the priority of reparations over other war claims as represented by the inter-allied debts.

"France never repudiated the debts she contracted during the war, either to England and America or to the inter-allied debts," he asserted.

France also is the creditor of the other allies for five or six billion gold marks, the summary continued.

He said that in the minds of those who drafted the treaty, damages to persons and property were to be granted priority over war costs.

Therefore, asks the note, is it to be supposed that "such war costs, which the allies agreed should rank first in priority, should be paid before the damages to persons and property?"

Referring specifically to the British demand for the payment of fourteen and one-half billion gold marks, the summary continues:

"We do not suppose that England intends to claim the sums before reparations are paid."

France's interest that Germany should recover, it certainly cannot be to her interest that Germany should be diminished.

The note begins by describing the note as "a general and sympathetic statement of the position taken by France, containing 'the elements of a practical solution'."

Furthermore, she always took into consideration Great Britain's lamentable and persistent unemployment.

She can assure satisfaction of the rigors of the occupation by using positive resistance, and she can win no reduction in the amount she owes France unless the allied creditors of France see fit to give France credit for an equal amount on her war debt."

These are the conclusions of Premier Poincare's reply to Marquis Curzon's reparations note of recent date.

The French position is reaffirmed as a result of the note.

The British proposals for a re-estimate of Germany's capacity for payment, and Lord Curzon's suggestion that the question of reparations be referred to the League of Nations, are rejected, and the French position is reaffirmed as a result of the note.

France holds that a settlement of the question of inter-allied war debts should wait upon final payment by Germany of its war debts.

Official opinion of the reply, as set forth in the summary in English given out today at the conference, is that the only practical solution is for Great Britain to accept the French thesis in every detail.

Mary Pickford, Prodigy at 9, Played on Myers Stage Here 20 Years Ago

Twenty years ago this Friday night August 24, 1903—the Myers theater was the scene of an event that today is particularly important, involving, as it does, one of the world's greatest stage actresses.

At the age of nine, Gladys Smith—now none other than Mary Pickford—played a part in "The Fatal Wedding" that surprised all Janesville residents who attended.

That the actress who today holds supreme place among motion picture stars and has been given the title "America's Sweetheart" even at the age of nine was destined to be a great actress is attested by the following "excerpt" from the Janesville Gazette issue of August 25, 1903:

"Praised by Newspaper
"Although 'The Fatal Wedding' gave equal pleasure throughout to the audience which assembled at the Myers theater last evening, the greatest interest attached to the performance of Gladys Smith, the little mother. Her performance included a total of about 58 'sides' to the play, and yet her mastery of her lines was more nearly complete than that of several of her elders."

"Was Good Melodrama
"The Fatal Wedding" possesses a vast amount of intrinsic merit in its way, and well deserves to be ranked among the best melodramas. In the hands of last night's company, the audience emphatically demonstrated its complete satisfaction. The entire scenic equipment used was carried by the company, and appeared fresh and unworked. The house, during the production, was above that of the average road melodrama."

CITY IS ASKED TO PAY SCHOOL NURSE

Red Cross, Short of Funds, Refers Glenn Matter to School Board.

Because funds in the Janesville branch, Rock County Red Cross, are so low that the branch will be unable to support the Red Cross nurse, Miss Alice Alden, more than three months more, the city is to be asked, through the school board, to keep up this work. It is thought necessary. The board of directors of the local Red Cross, meeting of special call Wednesday morning in the office in the postoffice building, passed the following resolution, to be presented to the board of education:

"Owing to the fact that the funds of the Red Cross are depleted, the board of directors of the Janesville branch, Rock County Red Cross, respectfully asks the board of education seriously consider assuming the responsibility of paying for the Red Cross nurse, Miss Alice Alden, for the remainder of the year. It is the feeling of the board that it is necessary to continue the work."

Rec'd City's Duty
Miss Alden's salary is $150 per month, plus expenses for her automobile averaging $21 per month. There is $115 now in the branch treasury, with many other expenses to be met, so that the nurse cannot be more than three months more.

Sentiment expressed by the board was that as the Red Cross has kept up this service for three and a half years and that the city has not been asked to contribute to the cost of the nurse, it should be the duty of the city, now, to continue this service. The city is of great value to the city, not doubted by city officials and others acquainted with the work, board members felt.

Annual campaign this year, either in October or November, will be conducted by mail and not by person, it was decided. It has been found successful in other years and is now almost necessary because of the lack of interest in this organization which performed so great a service during the war.

The county chapter has accepted the responsibility of donating 40 kits for Christmas giving to them in the three new homes of 25,000 of the United States and foreign countries. The national Red Cross will attempt to get Christmas kits to every one of the 15 million homes in the United States. A meeting of representatives from each branch will be held with Miss Alice Alden, county secretary, in the city hall building, Monday afternoon, to arrange for the filling of these kits.

Where Duty Lies.

Shorn of all personal interests either actual or collateral, the question uppermost in the minds of the people of Jansville at this moment is whether an officer of the law in pursuance of his duty may be assaulted and beaten and no official cognizance taken of the matter. The recent affair in Jansville has not been investigated. The police officer has been the goat. What Jansville wants to know is where the responsibility lies.

If the same thing occurs again will the same result follow? Is there not some way in the mechanics of the law, made and provided for such offenses, by which the guilty parties may be brought to book for the assault? Shall the police officer be made to pay the penalty for defending himself when some intoxicated person attacks him or must he meekly submit?

The facts seem to be that the chief of police of Jansville went after a warrant on the more grave charge that the offender's very to be haled into court for resisting an officer and attacking an officer while under arrest. But the district attorney of Rock county was willing to allow only a warrant on the charge of drunkenness.
If by any possible chance the trial should go on and the defendants were to fight the case, the other offenses might be casually mentioned.

The public knows what happened and because of it we have regrets expressed from the bench that a fine for the minor offense had to be imposed upon the prominent and powerful prisoner, and he so humiliated. No testimony was taken and ex parte statements were accepted by the judge that it was all lovely and satisfactory with those most deeply concerned, according to reports from the court room.

If we are to have a police force, free and clear from all external influences and devoted to the duties as laid down in the ordinances and in the statutes we have got to be back of the force.
Justice is for all. Not merely the outcast and the weakling but for the rich and politically powerful, as well. The man with influence is not to be lightly treated. He has a greater moral obligation to a community than the weak and unknown.
His example should be something worth while.
The court and peace officers owe to society certain obligations which seem to have been flagrantly overlooked.

The integrity of the Jansville police force is at stake. It has been humiliated. It has been slandered in order to save the face of some one else. Those contributing to such a situation should be placed on record where we may all read what the record reveals for future use and reference.

Increase in Farm Values.

Farm values have increased immensely in the last 20 years. Figures from the Census bureau show that the addition to value between 1900 and 1920 in Illinois, Wisconsin and the states west of the Mississippi river has been $42,000,000,000 or more than twice as much as our war debt is now. The average value of the farm has increased from $4,365 to $18,781 in that time. The average farmer who bought a farm twenty years ago and has paid for it has not been obliged to charge off anything for depreciation of property.
Farm values are not always measured as in industry, entirely by the productive or earning capacity of the land. But location, nearness to market and other factors enter largely into fixing of values. Some one has gained by the addition of forty two billion dollars in farms appraisal and who else but the farmer. It is possible that we overlook this feature in making up the sum-total of the farmer's condition.

No ukase of government has given that increase; no legislative law has made that possible.
Railroads have greatly aided by opening new territory, putting the farm nearer the market, adding facilities for selling products. Schools have played a part, roads too, have done much.
The isolated farm in the Ozarks which could once have been bought for a song is now a fruit orchard. Wisconsin lands which produced a small per acre crop of grain now provide meadow pasture and silage for herds of dairy cattle. We have learned to farm in the last 20 years. One thing we have not learned and that is, to market.
Just as farming was learned by experience, trial and effort, so must marketing be. Law will not make markets, it may make cooperative corporations legal and set the mates and bounds under which cooperative marketing may be done, but it will not take the products to the buyer nor will it put the cash in the hands of the producer. The problem is never to be solved until all the farmers have become one in mind as to the remedy and the action necessary to take to secure this market both in process and result. There may be political action more or less united but what is needed most of all is economic unity of purpose.

Pre-Emptive Bid For the Presidency

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—In the game of auction bridge there is what is known as the pre-emptive bid.
It consists of the bidder's calling on his first bid, the maximum strength of his hand, and perhaps a bit more, with the idea of stopping either of his adversaries from making a declaration that might lead to a successful final bid. It is fine strategy when it works, as it does, rather frequently.

In the game of national politics as it will be played leading up to the 1924 presidential nominations and election, there is a situation such that shrewd political observers are looking for what is the equivalent of a pre-emptive bid at auction. Calvin Coolidge, president by virtue of the sudden and unexpected death of Warren G.
Harding, is the one who has the opportunity of making this play.

He may be said to have made it should he, in announcing his candidacy for the republican nomination for the presidency, state definitely that in event of his nomination and election he will not be a candidate in 1928 to succeed himself.

Political analysts agree that such an announcement, made before the campaign for the 1924 nomination has become a wide-open fight, with numerous candidates duly entered and committed to a life or death struggle, would tend to lessen opposition to Mr. Coolidge's nomination and might, indeed, serve to keep some of the other prospective candidates out of the running. In that event it might well be termed a pre-emptive bid for the presidency.

There is sound reasoning back of the theory that President Coolidge will adopt this strategy.
We know he will be a candidate to succeed himself. This is even more certain than that Harding would have been a candidate had he lived. Being a candidate, the president will naturally seek to make his nomination as certain as possible. If he were to be a candidate with the idea of making still another race in 1928, the fight for the control of the republican national convention next year would be far more strenuous, and probably far more doubtful of result, than if he were to declare his intention to be content with serving the uncompleted term of the late President Harding, with one term in his own right.

Moreover, President Coolidge may be assumed to understand the temper of the American people and to realize that it would be an extremely difficult matter for him to win another election after he had been given four years and nineteen months in the White House. The third term tradition would undoubtedly militate against any such consummation.

There is precedent, also, for President Coolidge to follow in such a maneuver. When Theodore Roosevelt, as vice president, succeeded McKinley he said several times that he would regard his uncompleted term as his first term and on the day of election day in 1904 he announced formally that he would not be a candidate in 1908 for what might fairly be considered a third term.
Roosevelt was not without opposition for the 1904 nomination, but the opposition never assumed formidable proportions. Shrewd politicians attributed this chiefly to his having let it be known among the party leaders that he would not be a candidate four years later for that meant that 1908 would be a free-for-all contest in which ever other prospective candidate would have a much better chance than he would have backing Roosevelt in 1904.

During the last year of Roosevelt's administration it was common gossip that he regretted having placed himself on record in such a way that he could not make the race for another term, but no one ever came forward who would assert that he had heard Roosevelt express any such regret.
He favored William Howard Taft as his successor and it was no secret that the power of the federal organization was being used to elect delegates to the national convention who would support Taft.
Some of these delegates were instructed for Roosevelt, and as a result, the report was started that Roosevelt was really planning to take the nomination at the last moment.

Some of Taft's friends became greatly exasperated over the situation. Among others "Baron" Nelson, of Kansas City, one of the great newspaper proprietors of the country, felt that Taft was not getting a square deal from Roosevelt, and in due course he took it upon himself to "smoke Roosevelt out," as he put it.

It is said that his interview with Roosevelt was a heated one. The editor related the circumstances that led him and other Taft supporters to fear that they were being "double crossed" by the administration forces and coincided with an emphatic declaration that if the president were a candidate and should be nominated, he, Nelson, would oppose him with every resource at his command. In preparation for this Nelson said, he was all ready to launch a boom for Governor Johnson of Minnesota for the democratic nomination.

Roosevelt resented the imputation that his election night announcement had not been made in good faith, but Nelson insisted that even some of the president's closest friends were in doubt as to the president's real intentions and declared that the time had come for a showdown.

Immediately thereafter Roosevelt issued what was known as his "second renunciation," reiterating the announcement he had made in 1904.
This statement was so explicit as to admit of no misinterpretation and Taft's friends, as well as the other candidates and their backers, had no further occasion for worry.

Were President Calvin Coolidge to make it known that his ambitions were limited to carrying on the Harding policies during his present term and to serving four years thereafter in his own right, to might not make his nomination next year as easy and as certain as Roosevelt made his in 1904, but it is generally conceded in Washington that he would create a situation in which it would be impossible for the opposition ever to unite on one candidate against his nomination.
Every other candidate, naturally would prefer to see a man nominated and elected in 1924 who would be a one-term man, for if any one else were to be named next year he would be a candidate again in 1928. Accordingly Coolidge would become a second choice of each of his rivals, and in those circumstances it would be rather more than surprising if he were not the nominee.

Another thing predicted of President Coolidge is that he is not likely to indulge in any of the time-honored "bunk" about waiting to see if there is any "demand" for his candidacy, but would state frankly, as soon as he may be so with propriety, that he is ambitious to succeed himself.

pled the Ford charges. In a few words the automobile manufacturer said that McAdoo during the war had asked Mr. Ford to aid in a plan to get the locomotives and other equipment in repair and that experts under Ford worked out a scheme after which McAdoo refused to see Ford.
"The politicians had got to him," said Mr. Ford.
The Detroit manufacturer is after McAdoo, claiming that the son-in-law of Mr. Wilson is seeking to turn the railroads over to the government at an inflated price. It is an interesting quarrel and will perhaps widen the breach between Mr. Ford and the democratic leaders though few of them are for McAdoo, and it will have a tendency to relieve Mr. Ford of any worry that in a moment of temporary mental aberration the democratic convention will nominate him for the presidency.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE MAN-CHILD

The man-child dreams of golden deeds
And the spray of the roses
And his young lips utter the dauntless creed,
"For a warrior's soul has he."

He has not tasted the wine of fear,
Though he has the wine of a canard drink,
And he's not too young to be fashioned here
To think as his neighbors think.

He will draw his sword in the cause of right,
Set many a captive free;
When the challenge comes he will dare the fight, Whatever the odds may be.

The man-child slurs at a bugle call
And thrills at a battle-shout,
And he rides by night to a castle wall
To carry a maiden out.

But life chains many a brave soul down,
As the man-child soon shall know;
And some are held by the walls of town
As the long years come and go.

Some to the common tasks must stay,
And some are chained by fear,
And the dreams of a man-child fade away
As he bows to his duty here.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

We are deeply dismayed by the latest news from London—news of an international importance. It happens to strike close home, for the news is that the dinner jacket or as Americans call it, "tuxedo," has passed entirely out of style, and all men of fashion now wear tail coats in the evening for every sort of function.
Recently it was noted that during the supper hour at the Savoy not a dinner coat was to be seen. We take this as a personal grievance.
Only about a month ago we went and bought a new dinner jacket with a swell satin collar, and we paid $25.00 for the outfit, which, of course, is now just money thrown away. The old tail coat was legislated out of existence a year ago by the moths. We hardly know what to do about this, but we have a word of cheer from the gentlemen down in the basement of our house who press clothes. They claim he can faster a couple of tails onto this dinner jacket, but, of course, the grafting point will always show. The life of a man of fashion is cluttered up with difficulties, because, of course, if dinner jackets are taboo in London, far be it from us—

Who's Who Today

SEN. CLAUDE U. SWANSON.

That he may know first hand what the league of nations has accomplished to date, how it works, and what its members see in the future for it, Sen. Claude U. Swanson has gone to Europe to study the league in its native haunts.

Swanson has been one of the most influential members of the league ever since it became one of the paramount issues in Washington. Ever since his appointment in 1910 to succeed the late Senator Daniel, Swanson has played an important part in the Democratic politics of the upper house.

Claude U. Swanson was born at Swansboro, Va., in 1862. Starting life as a clerk in a general store, he later entered the University of Virginia from the law department of which he graduated in 1886. He practiced law for several years at Chatham, Va., then entered the political arena.
From 1893 to 1903 he represented the Fifth Virginia district in the lower house of congress, resigning to accept the governorship of Virginia.
In 1910 he resigned as governor to accept a U. S. senatorship. When his present term expires in 1925 he will have served in high office continuously for thirty-two years.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Aug. 22, 1883.—Messrs. Britton and Kimball have commenced putting down a cement walk in front of their building on West Milwaukee street, fronting the store occupied by P. S. Lawrence and Co., and the furniture store of Britton and Kimball. These concrete walks are becoming quite popular, and many of the businesses are having them laid in place of wood or stone.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Aug. 22, 1893.—The fruit season is now at its height, but growers declare it is the lightest in years. The apple crop will be light and but few cherries were canned by local housewives.
There is no explanation.—Walter Helms and Frank Parker are arranging for 200 sets for the band tournament to be held here next month.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Aug. 22, 1903.—The national census report is just out, giving Jansville 13,185 population against 10,836 in 1890. Beloit has had a remarkable rise in population, from 6,315 to 10,

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

NEURITIS AND COUNTER IRRITATION

Counter irritation refers to blisters and burns and scratches and punctures and the physician indicates that a blister or a hot liniment or anything like that sends a stimulating impulse to the seat of disease, thus influencing congestion, inflammation, absorption of inflammatory exudates, and even pain. Take this or leave it as you will, I can't guarantee it.

When anything in the nature of counter irritation is used in neuritis it is to be applied not on the skin over the painful area but at or near the place where the affected nerve leaves the spinal cord or brain.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Food for Diabetics.
Please give me the address of the publishers of any book you can suggest which gives menus and recipes for ways of preparing food for diabetics.—Miss M. S.

Answer.—A book by Dr. Lewis W.
Hill, of the Children's Hospital, Boston, under the title "The Starvation Treatment of Diabetes." It contains numerous good recipes and directions for preparing food. The book is not very recent, but the publisher seems to mean to survive anybody, however, but merely to describe the value of the diet. The difference between starvation and fasting or restriction of the diet is not a life and death matter.

The Mystery of Starch.
Do you think it will do me any harm to eat a year ago ribbing at it, and now I am appalled at the amount I eat. I enjoy the best of health and am a little stout. Will it ever get my anatomy by accumulating somewhere?
I enjoy the best of health and have experienced no ill effects.—Mrs. S. H. W.

Answer.—No harm in it, aside from the fact that it represents so much superfluous nourishment, not advisable for one already overweight, performing a lot of work, and a functioning in it are sound and functioning.

Horoscope

THURSDAY, AUGUST 23, 1923

Mercury in benefic aspect dominates the day, according to astrologers, and it is fortunate for many lines of activity.

There is an especially interesting sign read presaging many changes in newspapers and magazines.

Pictures are to be more and more used in press advertising. I started in the business of a publisher, and this is not altogether a good sign, since it encourages men and women to cease thinking or careful reading.
Under the sign of the scorpion, the publishers of every class who will seek novel methods of presenting their wares.

Mercury so powerful today, will be in a place of menace at the time of the autumn ingress next month.
Frenzied speculation in stocks and cereal is prognosticated.

Excitement and discord among members of the president's cabinet will be increased by the sign of the scorpion. There is a difference of opinion on more than one important question, the signs prophesy.

As Uranus is to remain in the sign of Pisces for several years, it is pre-told that there will be no settlement of prohibition problems, and difficulties, until the planetary influence passes.

This is a fortunate day for signing leases or contracts and especially for those that concern literary work.

Ancient lore found it lucky to choose the increase of the Moon for land travel and the decrease for voyages.

By the same signs it was found lucky to write for a loan or a favor when the Moon was full.

Astrologers find that certain years are milestones of great importance in the lives of men. The year 1923, forty-two should be very wise in administering all their affairs.

Persons whose birthdate it is should keep their money safe and should avoid all risks.

Children born on this day probably will be singularly gifted and exceedingly popular. These subjects of Venus may be too fond of pleasure and company. A girl may marry a man much older than herself.

VERMONTERS BEHIND CAL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Grafton, Vt. — A movement that started with no political significance, but which was intended merely to advance the general welfare of the state of Vermont, has formed itself into an organization that is actively supporting a national campaign to organize and enlarge Coolidge for President clubs.

In making this announcement yesterday, John Barrett, former director of the Pan American union, said approximately 150,000 of the first advocates of Vermont, now voting in 47 other states, had joined the movement.

"The original movement," said Mr. Barrett, "in itself, of course, had, and will have if consummated, no political character whatever. But suddenly and unexpectedly the elucation of Mr. Coolidge in his presidency has inspired native Vermonters everywhere to suggest that a similar national movement among them to form or join Coolidge clubs be inaugurated."

COOLIDGES IN WHITE HOUSE

Washington.—President and Mrs.
Coolidge are spending their first day
Wednesday as residents of the White House.

Until their morning newspapers were read, few of the capital's residents were aware that the president and the new first lady had moved from their quarters at the New Millard hotel, where they have lived since Mr. Coolidge returned to Washington as president and throughout his service as vice president. They slipped into the White House almost unnoticed late yesterday. Only a chance group of tourists visiting the grounds and a few foreigners were on hand to witness the formal taking of residence there by the third president.

LANCASTER BANK INSTALLS ALARMS

Lancaster.—The Union State bank has followed the example of the Fenimore State bank and that of Livingston, Wis., in installing complete burglar alarm system. The daring holdups and bank robberies throughout the western part of the state were given as reasons for the action.

HOUSEWIVES CLEAN OUT BROTHELS WITH PEPPER AND CLUBS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Detroit.—The "Cayenne Brigade," made of housewives of Hamtramck, local suburb, Tuesday was reinforced in its efforts to rid the neighborhood of brothels and wide open saloons.
Armed with boxes of cayenne pepper and improvised clubs, a score of housewives took the law into their own hands after Hamtramck police refused to make raids on information given by the women.

Inmates of the brothels were attacked and made to flee. "Landladies" of the various houses called Hamtramck police and had four of the brigade taken into custody, but the women were released and commended for their actions when arraigned before justice court.

According to charges made by the housewives the brothels and prevolsteadian saloons have operated unmolested in their neighborhood for six months.

The Riddle of the Spinning Wheel

By M. E. and T. W. HANSHEW

Being an Exploit in the Career of Hamilton Cleek, Detective Copyright, 1922, by Doubleday, Page & Co., and published by arrangement with McClure Newspaper Syndicate of New York City.

"In the lane—beyond—over there—I've been a fool—leave me and go yourself!" she panted out in disjointed sentences that were ringing with meaning.

"Never! We'll get there yet. Gather up your skirts. Quick! You're done!" It was his own voice that spoke to her, and for a sudden moment he had forgotten the girl who had been the cause of his distressing situation. He heard her gasp suddenly, send startled eyes up into his face, and then away again, and he knew that she was not alone. The shock of the thing had unsevered her. In the darkness she could not see his face clearly, but the voice had been—different. He brought the whole structure about his ears by one foolish momentary mistake. Then she suddenly gasped and fainted against him.

"Fool!" he apostrophized himself. "Blind fool!" and, stepping instantaneously, he caught her up in his arms just as the lane hove in sight, and throwing her across his shoulder, took the added burden in his best athletic fashion, and ran.

CHAPTER XXV
The Man in the Black Mask
They reached the motor only just in the nick of time, for already the darkness behind them was rent with cries of "There they are! There they are!" making the night hideous with the noise of pursuit, and the stampede of feet seemed to grow more dense with every minute.

Cleek flung his unconscious burden in the car, leaped in after it, and tapped the chauffeur upon the shoulder.

"Extinguish your lamps and make for the coast as quick as you can!" he gave out in the sharp staccato of excitement. "And the quicker the better! There's trouble here, and if those men catch up with us tonight I'll not answer for the lady's safety."

"Yes, sir!"

Then with a whizz and a whirr the car was off, rocketing down the lane and taking the corners upon two wheels, so that Cleek had hardly a breath left in his body, and the rush of air through the open windows as they sped away began to revive the unconscious form of Catherine Dowd who lay upon the seat beside him.

A drop of brandy, rather uncertainly administered because of the darkness and the jolting of the car, revived her still more, and in another moment she had opened her eyes and lay looking down upon his face. In the darkness they glowed like two lamps. And her face was very frightened.

"My God! Not Ross!" she broke out, unconsciously clutching his hands together across her breast in her agitation. "Then—who are you?"

"Who knows?" he responded with a touch of gallantry. "I was just mistaken in the first place, remember, not mine. A friend in need, perhaps, who has been able to save you from the consequences of a very foolish action. You know what those men were doing?"

"They were trying to—"

"Then you will learn tomorrow from the lips of a man whom you have learned to trust, because he has proved more than a match for you already. That is so, isn't it? Your Mr. Deland up at the Castle. From what he has said you have broken your word, and to do that is a very foolish thing."

"You won't tell?"—oh, surely you won't tell!" she gave out in a low, pleading voice. "You could afford to keep your tongue in your pocket, but you won't. But you stole my confidence, and I demand its return; that you tell nothing of tonight to a living soul. Will you?"

He paused a moment and looked

Dinner Stories

A certain gutter is confined in an asylum, says the Record. To persons who visit him he says:

"Look at this! It is my latest masterpiece. You look and see nothing but an expanse of bare canvas. They ask: 'What does that represent?' 'That? Why, that represents the passage of the Israelites through the Red Sea.' 'Dig pardon, but where is the sea?' 'It has been driven back.' 'And where are the Israelites?' 'They have been eaten.' 'And the Egyptians?' 'Will be here directly. That's the sort of painting I like—simple and unpretentious.'"

Little Johnnie, aged six, had been to church and had displayed more than usual interest in the sermon, in which the origin of Eve had been dwelt on at some length. "Yes, Eve."

"On his return from service, there being guests at dinner, he had also displayed a good deal of interest in the catalogue, especially 'no no and cakes.'"

Some time afterward, being misadvised, he was found sitting quietly in a corner with his hands pressed tightly over his eyes and an expression of awful anxiety on his face.

"Why, what on earth is the matter?" asked his mother in alarm.

"Mama, I'm afraid I'm going to have a wife," Little Johnnie replied.

The street car conductor's change was making short. A young mother with her baby in her lap handed him a half dollar.

Conductor: "Is that the smallest you've got?"

Young Mother: "Well, I've only been married a year!"—Kasper (Stockholm).

Household Hints

MINUTE HINT
Breakfast: Toast, Blueberries, Coffee.
Luncheon: Lamb Stuffed with Warm Rolls, Elderberry Jelly, Mince.
Dinner: Steak Smothered in Onions, Mashed Potatoes, Vegetable Salad, Berry Pie.

TODAY'S RECIPES.
Goldenrod Eggs—Six hard boiled eggs, white sauce, salt, pepper, and a dash of paprika. When done add the chopped whites of the eggs and pour over toast. Put pulverized eggs yolks on top and serve.

Lamb Soufflé—Lamb soufflé is a savory dish. It may be made either from cold meat or the fresh meat, simmered until very tender. Pass a rough of the cooked lamb through the meat grinder, give one cup of milk and a half. Season to taste with salt, paprika and celery salt and add half a cupful of seasoned cream sauce and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley. Heat over water and stir in the beaten yolks of two eggs. Remove from the fire, cool and fold in the stiffly whipped egg whites. Turn into a buttered soufflé dish and bake until well risen and browned. Serve quickly, as like all soufflés it falls when removed from the heat of the oven.

HEALTHFUL SWEETS
Parian Sweets—Use equal quantities of figs, dates, prunes and nuts. Raisins may be added and the nuts should be finely chopped. Chop the figs well and throw in a food-chopper, add sugar and beat in a little powdered sugar or grated coconut.

Stuffed Prunes and Dates—Soak the prunes overnight and replace with chopped nuts, raisins or apricots. Wash dates dry and serve same as prunes. Roll in granulated sugar.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.
Gooseberry Relish—Three pints gooseberries, four pints sugar, one pint water, juice and chopped rind of three oranges, one-half pound raisins. Cook 20 minutes.

Plum Conserve—Three pounds blue plums, three pounds sugar, one and one-half pounds seeded raisins, three oranges, juice and grated rind. Cook until thick like jam.

Spiced Peas—Four pounds peas, four pounds sugar; cook one hour. Two lemons boiled in a little water until tender; one-half pound of candied ginger root. Add ginger and lemon to peas and cook another half hour.

Quince Honey—Make syrup of one cup sugar and one cup water. When it is boiling hard grate one lb. one large quince and allow it to cook about five minutes, then pour into jelly glasses.

SUGGESTIONS
Furniture Polish—Take equal parts of vinegar and olive oil, mix well and rub well into the wood, then polish with a soft cloth. You will find it economical as well as handy, as a small amount can be made whenever needed. Will not injure the furniture and makes it look like new.

Scorched Food—When the food you are cooking on the stove boils dry do not add water to it. Flung the dish immediately into cold water. Then after a few minutes pour the contents into another dish to complete the cooking. In this way there is little danger that the food will taste, even though it has been slightly scorched.
